Subject: Fresh fallen snow in Forest Lakes

With a week-end upon us, I've heard that many of you would just love to go to your cabins and play in the snow. There is plenty of it to enjoy....total accumulation was about 45" in the past week. That's a LOT of snow! Here are some pictures of what you can expect. For those who don't plan to go look for themselves, enjoy these from your warm, comfy chair. We all like the snow pictures! Thanks to my husband, John, for the highway pics and thanks to Roxie and Chief Rodriguez for the interior pics. You can see lots more of their pics on the www.flfdaz.com website. Click on Photos/Apparatus and you'll find the Snow Pictures Jan 2017 album.

Most of you are seasoned residents, but we also have several new residents who will be enjoying their cabins in the snow for the first time. A few things to remind you about:

- Note the sign that Chief Rodriguez is standing near...it says "No Parking on Right of Way During Snow Removal Season". Please strictly adhere to it. You can be towed away or worse, the snow plow run into your car. Either way, you'd have a hard time getting back home!
- The snow is piled high on either side of the roads and also in front of each driveway. Each property owner is responsible for shoveling their own driveway.
- It's highly recommended that you have 4-wheel drive. If you get stuck, there are no tow companies nearby. Just sayin'.
- All the roads have been plowed, but not necessarily down to the gravel. There will be continuing maintenance on them and another reason that you can't park on them.
- Even though it looks warm, it's not! Today it is 22 degrees and the nights go way down from there. Best to not show up in shorts and flip flops. I say that from experience! (Not me, though!)
- Be wise and safe in all you do and have a great time! Send me pics if you want to share them with those who prefer to stay away.

Once again, here are the people who plow driveways and/or clean snow off roofs:
